Ordinance supplementing the Pittsburgh Code of Ordinances, Title One -- Administrative, Article III - Organization, Chapter 116: Department of Public Safety, to add a new subsection, § 116.17 - "Prohibition on the Execution of 'No-Knock' Warrants", by requiring all City police officers, when executing any warrant, to physically knock and announce the presence of police before entering a premises."
(Executive Session held 2/1/21)

Whereas, warrants executed by police officers, which allow them to gain forcible entry without knocking on the door and announcing their identity and purpose are referred to as “no-knock” warrants; and,

Whereas, in Pennsylvania, and in many other jurisdictions, if a homeowner believes that someone has illegally entered their home with ill intent, an attack on the homeowner or their family is not necessary to justify the use of deadly force; and,

Whereas, allowing police officers to gain forcible entry into a premises without clearly announcing their identity and purpose where the occupants of said premises have no duty to retreat and are lawfully permitted to use deadly force to defend their families and properties can lead and have led to fatal interactions between police officers and citizens; and,

Whereas, in one instance, the police had obtained a no-knock search warrant and broke down the door of a 90-year old woman. When the police broke down her door she responded with gunfire. The police returned her fire and killed the woman. The police were acting on a tip that a man at that residence had previously sold drugs there. There was no evidence that the old woman had a man living at the house or had ever sold drugs; and,

Whereas, in New York City, undercover officers confronted a man who was attending his bachelor party before his scheduled wedding later in the day. They police claim they had heard someone in the mans group make a comment that they had a gun in their possession. The police killed the groom to be and, in the process, fired 50 shots. The men attacked by the police were found to be unarmed; and,

Whereas, on the night of March 13, 2020, officers with the Louisville Metropolitan Police Department forced entry into the home of Breonna Taylor, a Black woman and emergency room technician with University of Louisville Health System. Ms. Taylor’s boyfriend, unaware that the intruders were police officers, and in fear for his life and hers, fired at the intruders, as the law allows. The officers responded with dozens of bullets, some of which struck Ms. Taylor, killing her; and,

Whereas, these tragedies highlight the risk both to innocent citizens and to police officers of allowing police to execute arrest and/or search warrants without clearly announcing their presence and without being in uniform prior to entry; and,

Whereas, our citizens have the constitutional right, under both the state and federal constitutions, to be safe in their persons and their homes; and,

Whereas, the practice of executing “no-knock” warrants may place police in danger of being legally shot when attempting to enter a home or effect an arrest if they have not clearly identified themselves as police officers; and,

Whereas, Article I, § 26 of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania states that, “Neither the Commonwealth nor any political subdivision thereof shall deny to any person the enjoyment of any civil right, nor discriminate against any person in the exercise of any civil right.”; and,

Whereas, such Ordinances and regulations are clearly in the interest of both the City’s citizens and its police officers.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, THAT THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PITTSBURGH HEREBY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:
