Resolution establishing the City of Pittsburgh All-In Cities Leadership Forum.
(Post Agenda and Public Hearing held 12/5/19)

Whereas, the City’s Gender Equity Commission’s report, titled, “Pittsburgh’s Inequality Across Gender and Race”, found that Pittsburgh’s African-American residents could move to almost any other U.S. city of comparable size and enjoy a better quality of life; and,

Whereas, this is due to how deeply systemic racism is embedded in the culture, the fabric and the infrastructure and residential patterns of the City of Pittsburgh; and,

Whereas, in Pittsburgh, a century of intentional decisions has locked most of Pittsburgh’s African-American residents in neighborhoods of concentrated poverty lacking any real opportunity, where the overwhelming majority of Pittsburgh’s African-American residents live; and,

Whereas, these neighborhoods, explicitly the result of racial discrimination, create conditions for their African-American residents that lead to disproportionate and intergenerational poverty and their suffering from chronic diseases, lowered lifespans and premature death; and,

Whereas, African-American women suffer higher rates of maternal mortality, poverty, lower rates of college readiness and lower rates of employment; and,

Whereas, African-American men face higher rates of occupational segregation, homicide, cancer and cardiovascular diseases; and,

Whereas, African Americans have made significant contributions to the arts legacy of Pittsburgh, yet their contributions often go unacknowledged, while the systemic and structural racism in Pittsburgh has led many African American artists to leave the city in search of more equitable environments where they can flourish and be recognized; and,

Whereas, these inequitable conditions, concentrated so heavily and so squarely upon a single group of the City's residents and in specific neighborhoods, has created both an economic and a public health crisis; and,

Whereas, nothing short of the collective mobilization of all of the City's resources and strategies holds any hope of resolving these crises; and,

Whereas, the time for half-measures must come to an end; and,

Whereas, the City is committed to implement the recommendations of the Pittsburgh Black Elected Officials Coalition's (PBEOC) Pittsburgh Peace and Justice Initiative (P&JI). The P&JI recommendations covers six (6) key civic areas Public Safety, Affordable Housing, Family Outcomes, Business and Organizational Development, Education and Employment identified by the PBEOC as critical to the future of the African Americans in the region.; and

Whereas, in 2016, Neighborhood Allies, Urban Innovation 21 and PolicyLink spearheaded the formation of All-In Pittsburgh, a coalition of equitable development stakeholders dedicated to advancing racial equity in Pittsburgh; and,

Whereas, in September, 2016, PolicyLink released "Equitable Development: The Path to an All-In Pittsburgh," a set of equitable development recommendations developed in conjunction with the All-In Pittsburgh coalition; and,

Whereas, while some progress has been made toward implementation of the All-In Pittsburgh policy recommendations, the pace of progress has not been commensurate with the urgency of the economic and public health crisis faced by the City.
